Schermerhorn receives master certification

Dr. William Horton, left, awards Lisa Schermerhorn with her master certification in neurolinguistic programming.

Lisa Schermerhorn, Fayston, certified hypnotist/coach, received her master certification in neuro-linguistic programming (NLP) from Dr. William Horton at the National Guild of Hypnotists Conference in August. NLP is a tool used to enhance performance and to help an individual control their emotional state. It also helps an individual stay focused on what they want from life.

NLP is one of many tools Schermerhorn offers to help enhance sports performance, lose weight, quit smoking, stress relief and help people reach their goals.

JD Green returns to the Radio Vermont Group

Radio announcer JD Green is returning to the Waterbury-based Radio Vermont Group. Beginning on Friday, September 16, Green will replace Steve "Corm" Cormier as the morning host of "Wake-Up 101" on the 101-The One network of stations: WCVT-FM 101.7 Stowe-Burlington; WEXP-FM 101.5 Brandon-Rutland and 102.5 FM translator service in Montpelier.

According to Ken Squier, president of the Radio Vermont Group, "Corm has been doing double duty for over a year, performing as our group director of sales and as the wake-up announcer on The One. Though we enjoyed having Corm on-the-air, this change is needed and we know JD is right for our audience."

Green and his partner, Charilyn, and their 22-month-old daughter, Lily, share an old farmhouse with their two dogs, a cat and a few chickens.

Zint joins Tucker Hill Inn

Christopher Zint has joined Tucker Hill Inn as executive chef. Since graduating with distinction from L'Academie de Cuisine in 2002, Zint has been honing his skills at some of the finest restaurants along the East Coast. He got his start working for the James Beard Foundation's Best Chef in America, Patrick O'Connell, at The Inn at Little Washington in Virginia.

Later, he apprenticed with another James Beard Winner, Rob Evans, at Hugo's in Maine. Most recently Zint spent several years working at The Pitcher Inn and The Common Man.

Tucker Hill is reopening its restaurant and pub to the public. The menu will change with the seasons, primarily based on what ingredients can be sourced locally. A limited number of entrees will be offered nightly on Friday and Saturday evenings. Call for reservations.

Groom completes coursework

Zoe Groom, Warren, Balanced Body University (BBU) certified instructor and owner of Zoe's Pilates, recently completed a Journey to Advanced Pilates Mat Work and Advanced Thinking for a Vital Life course. The course was given by Wendy LeBlanc-Arbuckle of BBU and focused on discovering a fascial approach to movement, experiencing the elastic recoil of breath, learning to yield to gravity and resetting primal connections.

Bill Cavanaugh joins Mad River Food Hub

Bill Cavanaugh is joining the team at the Mad River Food Hub (MRFH) to head up meat processing and food safety at the Waitsfield business incubator.

Cavanaugh is moving to Vermont from Pennsylvania where he was business manager for Dundore and Heister Meats, a retail butcher shop in West Reading. Prior to Dundore he served as the production manager/head butcher at Fleisher's Grass Fed and Organic Meats, a craft butchery in New York.

Mad River Food Hub is a USDA-inspected processing facility where farms and businesses have access to processing rooms, cold storage and technical assistance designed to help incubate their businesses.

"Mad River Food Hub has been in operation nearly five years and we have been looking for a butcher with business and education expertise to enhance the services to our current and future customers as well as our community," said Robin Morris, Mad River Food Hub's founder and president. "Bill will be able to share his wealth of experience from the New York and Pennsylvania markets with our customers including training on curing, smoking and charcuterie."

"I've always loved the dedication that people in Vermont have to well-raised, local meat," Cavanaugh shared. "Mad River Food Hub is playing a vital role in strengthening that commitment."

MRFH provides farmers and food producers with a wide array of commercial scale meat and vegetable processing equipment as well as on-site storage and distribution service to local market outlets. For more information visit www.madriverfoodhub.com.

MRG board accepts Wimble resignation

The Mad River Glen (MRG) board of trustees accepted the resignation of president/general manager Jamey Wimble at the end of last week. The board thanked Wimble for his longstanding service to the cooperative and his many valuable contributions over the years. The board wished him well with his future endeavors.

To manage the mountain during the upcoming transition, an interim management team has been formed which includes Sharon Crawford, administrative manager; Eric Friedman, marketing director; Nate Martin, mountain manager; and board chair, Meg Hourihan.

The trustees noted their strong belief that the mountain's staff is the most valuable asset and said they have complete confidence in their ability to ensure that Mad River Glen continues to be a successful and smooth operation during this transition.

The trustees are moving immediately to form a search committee. As part of the search process, they are re-evaluating the position of president/general manager and the job description.
